

Winners

Losers

▲ Fugitive Squeezers: Bail bondsman Gary Cooper of Thomasville, Ga., credits success in rounding up bail jumpers to Pete, a 6-foot-long python that he carries along in a pillow case.

▲ Fido: The Cape Fear, N.C., chapter of American Red Cross begins teaching Pet First Aid, a three-hour course that includes CPR for dogs and cats.

▲ Voters: The Mobile, Ala., public bus system agrees to offer a free ride on Election Day, Nov. 7, to anyone with proof of voter registration.

▼ Road Trips: University of Georgia suspended classes last Thursday and Friday so students could travel to an away football game against the University of Florida, but the Bulldogs lost, 34-23.

▼ Pass Play: Doctors say the Duke University football team passed food poisoning to its opponents in a 1998 game, the first known transmission of a virus by pigskin.

▼ Seniors: Students in Milledgeville, Ga., will have to retake their high-school graduation exam after a box of unscored tests disappears from the local school-board office.